Baking kids' charity sale

TWO Folkestone Academy pupils used their initiative to raise money for a local charity last week.

After representatives from the Canterbury branch of the NSPCC visited their cadet group Megan Lucas and Kyle Strange spoke to a teacher about fundraising at school.

The pair, aged 13 and 14, decided to adopt the NSPCC as their house charity and organised a cake sale on Friday.

Teachers and pupils from all over the school got involved in making and bringing in the cakes, which raised £74 for the children's charity.

Canterbury branch secretary Katrina Roach was delighted with the children's efforts. She said:

"It is fantastic to see children doing something for the community and a charity they feel passionate about."
